Your annual Literary Journal, "Soul in Paraphrase," is accepting submissions for the 2017-2018 issue. Email your essays, jokes, opinion pieces, photographs, poetry, short stories, songs, monologues, rants, satire, journalism, comics, and other visual or written pieces to sipcmu@gmail.com by January 20th. Any visual art should come accompanied with a short blurb about the piece: what inspired it, why it was made, a quote related to it, what it means, etc. "Soul in Paraphrase" will be printed in black and white. Written pieces should be no longer than 10 pages. Email sipcmu@gmail.com or talk to Emily Stobbe-Wiebe, Erin Toews, or Lea Nikel if you have more questions.

If you have not invested in visiting the Canadian Museum for Human Rights yet, from January 16 – 31, all visitors can enjoy a flat $5 admission rate. Take the opportunity. – Wendy Kroeker

Here are five reasons you should consider taking a course at the Canadian School of Peacebuilding, June 11-15 and 18-22, 2018:

1. The CSOP offers you the chance to take courses with amazing instructors like Babu Ayindo, a storyteller, writer, and instructor from Kenya and Deng Giguiento, a grassroots peacebuilder from the Philippines, as well as great local faculty, like Jerry Buckland.
2. CMU students qualify for a deferred payment plan for CSOP courses.
3. CSOP courses are not just for PACTS students. You can earn credits in PSYC, POLS, BTS, IDS, BUSI and PCTS through CSOP courses.
4. Taking a CSOP course (or two) will lighten your load during the regular academic year.
5. You get the chance to build relationships with amazing people from around the world.

See Wendy or Val for more information or check out our website at csop.cmu.ca. Talk to Vern or your faculty advisor about how CSOP courses can fit into your degree.
