

Viewbook | 2025/26

Canadian Mennonite University is committed to embodying the inclusivity of Jesus Christ's life and teachings. This means welcoming all students regardless of their identity, background, or beliefs.

CMU is located on territory stewarded for generations by the Anishinaabe, Cree, Dakota, and Métis people. Our campus sits on Treaty 1 lands, where we access clean drinking water from Shoal Lake 39 and 40 in Treaty 3 territory and use hydro power generated on Treaty 5 territory.

We benefit from these treaty relationships every day and are committed to living purposefully as we work towards reconciliation and build meaningful, lasting relationships with Indigenous people and with all of God's creation.

The CMU Difference

Yes, CMU is rooted in a particular community of faith.

The early Mennonites were widely regarded as radical agitators who challenged the status quo (and were persecuted because of it). They were also deeply committed to honouring all voices through consensus, collaboration, and community building.

The only requirement for belonging was commitment to a shared vision.

As a result, notions of community and relationship are deeply embedded in Mennonite theology and tradition, as are commitments to peace, justice, discipleship, and service.

This means we do education a little bit differently; it has a distinct flavour—these elements are not found anywhere else in Canada.

And yes. Whoever you are, you are welcome here.

Faith is at the centre

Spiritual development and discipleship formation happens both individually and together with others through voluntary participation. This includes everything from public events to classroom dialogue to chapel services to small groups led by students and faculty.

Robust structured programming outside of the classroom

Programs are in place for both residence students and commuter students. Focused orientation resources are offered so new students can get to know CMU and build friendships with each other.

Free counselling and other support services are available to all students

CMU strives to support the holistic wellbeing of all members of its community.

Students, professors, and staff share meals together

At student forums and other events, and in the dining hall.

What does this look like at CMU?

You will notice collaboration and community-building happening in a wide range of ways at CMU:

All are welcome

CMU is committed to embodying the inclusivity of Jesus Christ's teachings and example. This means welcoming all students regardless of their identity, background, and faith (or no faith).

Rigorous academic standards and strong supports to succeed

There are strong expectations for every person in the learning community to contribute as they can. For students, this includes rigorous academic standards as well as strong supports to reach the high bar.

Student/professor mentoring and research collaborations

This is a regular feature of CMU undergraduate academics. Even at the bachelor level, professors engage and involve students in research on topics ranging from antibiotics to cancer to elder care.

Practical, real-world experience is a requirement

Work-integrated learning is required in all undergraduate degree programs regardless of major. This invaluable experience provides students the opportunity to apply classroom theory in the workplace as they develop skills, gain insights into career objectives, and develop work-based networks.

All are understood as valued peers

Students are seen and known by professors and staff who prioritize mutual, two-way relationships. Students are not just a number.

Service, justice, and peacebuilding happen in a wide range of ways at CMU:

Students are encouraged to explore, challenge, and debate ideas—inside and outside the classroom.

Ideas such as collaboration, sharing, and “don't take more than you need” are a core part of the campus culture.

Building a culture of inter-cultural health, equity, diversity, and inclusion is a university priority.

Students organize, get involved, and use their voices to work for change on the big issues facing our world like MMIWG, just energy transition, and peace in Ukraine, the Middle East, and beyond.

Faculty-supported, student-led advocacy groups thrive at CMU.

Sustainable campus planning prioritizes reducing greenhouse gases while maximizing energy efficiency.

Metanoia Farmers Workers Cooperative is an active on-campus food justice and market farm initiative owned and led by CMU students and alumni.

CMU Food Services prioritizes locally sourced food products, including purchasing fresh produce from Metanoia Farmers.

There is a strong active transportation commuter culture at CMU. Sanctoral Cycle Bike Co-op is a student-led bicycle maintenance and advocacy hub on campus.

Terms to know

A bachelor or undergraduate degree is the first university degree you can pursue after finishing high school. These programs usually take three to five years to complete. While many students enter the workforce right after completing their undergraduate degree, others continue their studies in professional or graduate programs (e.g., master or doctorate).

Your major is your primary area of study in your bachelor degree; for example, you could enroll in a Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in English, history, communications and media, or psychology.

You can also add a minor, or a secondary area of study, to your bachelor degree; for example, you could enroll in a Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in English and a minor in psychology. This is entirely optional.

Professional programs are programs that require one or more years of university study for admission. These include counselling, dentistry, education, law, medicine, nursing, social work, and more. Many students complete their prerequisites for professional programs at CMU.

The Commons

The purpose of CMU's common curriculum is to help students integrate ideas and to guide learning through and beyond a chosen area of study. The Commons includes a set of required courses that every undergraduate student takes during their degree.

The Commons* provides a shared pathway along the journey of creating knowledge. It offers the opportunity to engage with a broad range of students, ideas, and course content throughout a CMU degree and provides pivot points into the real world.

The Commons* builds skills for engaging the world through its distinctive courses:

Ways of Knowing I is a foundational, first-year course that explores big questions from a range of perspectives (collaboratively taught by six faculty from diverse fields of study).

All Indigenous courses are designed through active collaboration and discernment with Indigenous Elders, Knowledge Keepers, and Indigenous business leaders and community members.

Anabaptist courses explore the diversity of Mennonite tradition, including ideas of community, service, peacebuilding, reconciliation, and contributing to the betterment of society.

Making courses invite students to create media, performances, and other work beyond the printed page.

Writing courses teach students to write for diverse, real-life audiences in effective, academic ways.

Work-integrated learning opportunities provide real-life experience to prepare students for career decisions and opportunities, drawing from the Mennonite tradition's long-standing orientation of service, discipleship, and being practical.

Ways of Knowing II is CMU's upper-level seminar requirement that draws together research, knowledge, and discourse from across academic disciplines in a major project.

Big Opportunities

Do you know who you want to be in the world? Have you figured out how you want to use your skills and gifts after university? Do you already have a career path in mind but need some support and direction to help you achieve your goals?

The Centre for Career and Vocation (CCV) was created to help you figure out who you are and who you want to be in the world, with a focus on service and leadership development.

CCV's job is to support you on your journey of vocational exploration and career discernment, and to strengthen your skills to make a difference.

Work-integrated learning

Figuring out who you are and how you want to engage with the world around you is a central part of the university experience. Work-integrated learning placements help you through this process, bridging your classroom learning with professional work experiences. This can be a critical doorway to your future career.

Every CMU undergraduate is required to complete a work-integrated learning placement, to make connections between academic learning and skill development.

CMU grads have completed work-integrated learning placements at more than 500 different organizations on every continent (except Antarctica).

CMU is the only university in Canada with this distinct work-integrated learning emphasis across all program areas.

Explore the placement partners that CCV has worked with over the last 20+ years.

Jason Friesen turned his CMU placement into a full-time position as Coordinator, Communications and Content, with True North Sports + Entertainment

Accreditation

Canadian Mennonite University is a provincially, nationally, and internationally recognized university offering provincially accredited degree programs. We are a proud member of Universities Canada.

This sense of community is vital for personal health and for a rich and fulfilling university experience. Relationships are developed through planned and spontaneous activities and shared experiences on campus.

Transition to independent living

For many students, university happens alongside their transition into adulthood. When you live on campus, we take care of the details like hydro, water, internet, and meals so you can focus on developing other important life skills, including time management, budgeting, and your social life. We make it our goal to provide a safe and nurturing environment in which you can step into adulthood and explore your faith and identity.

Convenient and affordable

The convenience of close proximity to your classes, campus facilities, and co-curricular activities makes it easy to participate fully in the university experience. It also means time and money saved on your commute! When you live on campus, you can go home between classes and study, grab food, or take a nap. If this isn't enough to convince you, CMU offers the most affordable on-campus housing anywhere in Manitoba!

Academic advising and support

We prioritize academic advising and support at CMU. Every first-year student is assigned to an advising group, which serves as a place to consider what their academic journey will look like. Our Peer-Assisted Learning program and private tutoring provide academic assistance. We also have Advising Coordinators who can help with course selection, tracking graduation requirements, and aspirations for professional or graduate programs.

Student leadership

CMU is the perfect place to grow and develop your leadership skills. You can serve on Student Council, the Music Students' Association, or the Science Students' Association. You can also be a Residence Assistant, helping to foster a positive living-learning environment within the residence community, or a Student Navigator, helping new students as they transition to university. The possibilities are many!

Spiritual life

Spiritual life—growing in faith and following Christ in daily life—is important at CMU. We encourage and facilitate this in a variety of ways, including voluntary participation in twice weekly chapels, weekly forums, student-led Wednesday night worship, small groups, and an on-campus prayer room.

Counselling and wellness

In recognition that mental health and personal well-being are essential to academic success, CMU offers free, short-term, professional counselling services to registered students.

Commuter students

From sports and recreation events to chess club and potlucks, there are many ways for you to get involved, even if you don't live on campus. Hang out in Marpeck Commons, our student-run Blaurock Café, or in one of our two commuter lounges to get connected and make CMU feel more like home.

Accessibility services

International students

Thirteen per cent of our student population is composed of international students from over 30 different countries. We recognize the value that international students bring to CMU, so we have developed specific supports for this group, including the Bridge Transition Program for first-year international students aged 17-25 who have not previously studied in Canada.

Indigenous reconciliation and relationships

CMU is a partner of the Manitoba Collaborative Indigenous Education Blueprint for universities, colleges, and public school boards, demonstrating our commitment to Indigenous education. Annually, CMU provides formal account on these commitments, in addition to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission's calls to action, to the Board of Governors.

Since 2004, Indspire has provided over $115M in financial support to more than 37,500 First Nations, Inuit, and Métis students. All Indspire: Building Brighter Futures donations are matched by the Government of Canada, doubling the impact for Indigenous students.

CMU funds two awards through this program—one general award and one award for business students.

CMU and Sandy-Saulteaux Spiritual Centre (a training centre for Indigenous Christian leaders) have a formal relationship that is covenanted and renewed through bundle exchange ceremonies. This includes friendship, course collaborations, and cross-cultural learning opportunities for members of both communities.

13% of CMU's Manitoba students identify as First Nations, Inuit, or Métis

All of CMU's Indigenous courses are designed through active collaboration and discernment with Indigenous Elders, Knowledge Keepers, community and business leaders, and community members.

The CMU Blazers athletics teams have been proudly wearing Treaty 1– themed uniforms since 2021. These uniforms were designed by a local Indigenous artist and graphic designer after broad consultation with Indigenous community members and leaders (including the Treaty Relations Commission of Manitoba).

In 2022, CMU's Indigenous students initiated the purchase of a Cree tipi for the CMU campus. Since then, the tipi has been assembled by our learning community annually, under the guidance of a Cree Knowledge Keeper, and has been used as a space for ceremony, for students, and for class gatherings.

This year, CMU is honoured to welcome an Indigenous Elder to the campus to offer students wisdom, care, and spiritual guidance.
