Many scent-free products are available at your local supermarket and pharmacy. Others are available in specialty stores and do tend to be a bit more pricey. However, many of the specialty items are of high quality, and are effective in smaller quantities than the scented products.

As you look into scent-free alternatives to scented personal-care products, it's important to be aware that the terms 'fragrance-free', 'scent-free' and 'unscented' are used virtually without restrictions. They may only mean that the product has less scent than the scented version of the same product from that manufacturer.

Nonetheless, choosing products with these labels is still safer than choosing the scented versions.
